

The Memphis Commercial Appeal yesterday printed a story from Tupelo, Miss., reporting that R. W. Edgeworth, 76, of Shannon, Miss., is "The nation's champion watermelon grower."

This claim seems to be based on the fact that last year Mr. Edgeworth grew a watermelon weighing 110 pounds and several others ranging from 75 to 90 pounds.

All of which looks rather silly in print, explainable only because the Memphis papers cultivate a sort of local fame for the farmers living in the tri-state area.

The fact is: The Hope territory has held the world's watermelon championship for many years—with a long series of big melons, ranging in weights from better than 140 pounds to more than 160, and a 105-pound all-time champion which was produced here in 1938 and given to Actor Dick Powell in Hollywood. The same patch that produced the 1935 champion grew 13 melons which grossed a ton. Hope's story has been told repeatedly all over America. Memphis should know better.

Citizens are warned that good times are bad times to go in debt—and the Federal Reserve Board is going to see to it that you don't owe much. New credit regulations announced yesterday require a one-third down payment on automobiles; a 20 per cent down payment on household articles and machines. But that isn't all.

If your debt is under $1,000 you have 15 months to pay it. After 18 months if the amount is over $1,000. But on the 18-month schedule your minimum monthly payment has to be $70. This will check loose buying all over America—for $70 is a lot of money to lay on the line every month before you start earning.

Theater operator in Meridian, Miss., said yesterday he has canceled the showing of "Tap Roots", new picture based on the novel by James Street, because of alleged political statements in the Street made on a visit to Mississippi.

But Mr. Street is a native of Mississippi, and if a home town guy can't pop off in the land where he was born what kind of freedom is this American democracy anyway? And who are authors, to be taken seriously on political questions? Besides, Mr. Street says he didn't say whatever it was that gave the theater owner offense.

Furthermore, when a man writes books like "O Promised Land", "Tap Roots", "Valley of the Kings", "The Gauntlet", his fellow citizens can afford to humor him even if he should make an unskillful remark on the skilled and treacherous field that is called politics.

Air Mail Speed Suffers While PO Reverses Helicopter Plan
By S. BURTON HEATH

The post office is getting cold feet about using helicopters in big cities to carry mail between airports and post offices. The experiment has worked successfully for nearly a year in Los Angeles. Now the department wants to hold up in Chicago and asks for indefinite delay in New York.

Unless there are better grounds than have been cited, this is unfortunate for the public. It betrays lamentable unawareness of the popular temper.

The great trouble with aviation generally—aside from uncertainties arising from weather, which science is reducing—is the problem of ground time. One can fly in about the time it takes to get from the airports to the city proper. A letter from a Chicago suburb to a Los Angeles suburb takes 39 hours. Of that, only seven hours is in the air. The rest is ground time. 32 hours are needed getting the envelope to the airport in Chicago and from it at the other end.

A year ago, the department was highly enthusiastic about reducing this time lag by use of helicopters. It had a plan for a second assistant postmaster-general, said, when the Los Angeles service was opened, that it would save from four to 19 hours in ground time on first-class mail.

There is no suggestion that it has now changed its mind. The department now is talking about cost. A spokesman before the CAB says "copter service costs $127 a day, but trucks would do the job for $134.24 a day."

It is pleasing to have any government department worry about $134.76 a day. We'd like to see more such economizing. But persons who need to economize can send a post card for one cent. Those whose messages are too long or confidential can send a train mail letter for three cents. When one squanders a whole nickel, he does so because he wants his letter to move fast. Maybe, because time is money, he even adds a 15-cent special delivery stamp, not so much for actual special delivery as to assure that his letter makes the first mail pouch on every leg of the journey.

Those who pay extra for air mail speed are entitled to speed. Before the helicopter, a letter had to wait that much of the gain made in the air was lost on the ground on either end. Now that civil is unnecessary.

To be sure, the copter costs more than the truck. But it costs less than it did a year ago when the post office department was enthusiastic about it. In Los Angeles the cost of carrying a letter a mile has dropped from more than half a cent to less than a third of a cent.

One aggrieved wife complained because, she said, her husband had been in a flower box (not pot) at her. A husband declared that his wife had tossed a rocking chair at him. "Hit me, too," he said.

Russians Seize Stab Germans in U. S. Zone

Berlin, Aug. 21 — (AP) — Russian soldiers stabbed and beat two German policemen from the American sector of Berlin today when the Germans resisted abduction into the Soviet zone, western sector police announced.

The announcement said Russians carried the two Germans bodily into the Soviet sector. The two plain clothesmen were stopped near the sector border by numerous Russians and ordered to go across, the announcement said.

When they resisted, it reported, one was stabbed and the other beaten with a rifle butt.

While American authorities acted to head off a possible violent clash between the police force of the eastern and western sectors, still another kidnapping incident was attributed to the Russians.

British authorities announced that armed Russians abducted two German policemen from their sector. They demanded the return of the men.

The latest abduction was the third carried out by the Russians in two days. American officials have demanded formally the release of three German policemen from their sector who were seized by the Russians during a black market raid yesterday on the American-Russian sector border.

The Americans said the Russians made no reply.

One of the British sector police seized today later escaped. In all, three of nine western sector police seized in the clashes have managed to flee their captors.

The British said the police were taken to a Soviet police headquarters in the Soviet zone.

The Americans announced they will seek face-to-face talks with the Russians to try for a truce in the conflict involving Berlin's divided police force.

The British announced they are strengthening their military police, and German police patrols at Potsdamer Platz, where the east-west border is located.

There, this morning, three East German press photographers were reported arrested by the Russians.

Gerhard Stuntz, American newspaper photographer for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, was held briefly and then released. He said the Russians had accosted him as he was standing inside the British sector.

The British, meanwhile, formally demanded that the Russians explain their arrest of Mueckenberg, director of Berlin's central coal office. The British said Socialist Mueckenberg was an official with city-wide powers and therefore responsible to all four occupying powers. They asked the Russians what charges were made against him.

Forced Smile

Consul General Jacob Lomakin forced a smile as he left the Russian Consulate in New York City, after hearing of the U. S. demand that he be recalled for "highly improper" activities in the case of the Soviet School Teachers. Accompanying him is Maria Kharlamova, consulate employee.

Washington, Aug. 21 — (AP) — The House Un-American Activities committee today drew up a subpoena for J. Peters, described in testimony as a longtime head of the Communist underground in this country.

But there was no assurance that the mysterious, much-sought witness would talk even if committee agents find him and if he is promised immunity from deportation which immigration authorities are threatening him with.

Peters was arrested last October and released under $5,000 bond to await a decision on whether he should be deported as a member of an organization advocating forcible overthrow of the government.

Some time in the next ten days the committee hopes to be able to interview Peters during the deportation hearing promised by Watson Miller, commissioner of immigration.

Miller informed the committee yesterday he cannot legally produce Peters for a Congressional hearing. But Rep. Nixon (R-Calif.) said Miller agreed to notify the committee of the time and place of the "early" hearing in the deportation case. At that time, Nixon said, the committee subpoena can be served.

Whittaker Chambers, self-avowed former Communist and now a Time magazine senior editor has named Peters as the man who headed the Communist underground movement in this country prior to 1937.

Through questioning of Peters the committee hopes to verify some of the testimony it has received from Chambers implicating leading former federal officials.

Committee members conceded that Peters, like many other persons named by Chambers, may refuse to talk. But they speculated that he might be willing to name names in exchange for immunity from deportation.

Nazi Who Worked to Kill All Jews, to Trial

Nuernberg, Germany, Aug. 20 — (AP) — Julius Schaub, accused of persuading Adolf Hitler to kill Jews, was indicted on war crimes charges today by the German government in Munich.

It was the first war crimes indictment made by the Germans themselves.

Schaub, 50, joined the Nazi party in 1933. He was in the abortive Munich Putsch and went to the Landsberg jail with Hitler.

Authorities said Heywood Brown, 60, killed his sister, Dora, and himself yesterday during a lull in a 24-hour gun battle with 50 troopers and local officers, three of them wounded.

Brown's barren, two-room shanty burst into flames as two shots rang from its interior. When the embers cooled officers found the charred bodies of Brown and his sister.

The fight began Thursday when Sheriff Russell Burdine approached the isolated shanty to serve Brown an insanity warrant.

Brown then opened fire, wounding later with Lt. Alan Templeton and Sgt. D. G. Wilson of the state police. Both Templeton and Wilson were wounded as Brown, a farmer, fired upon the trio with his shotgun.

Yesterday, state officers with tear gas were called. They laid siege to the shack on the banks of the river. Brown, an expert sniper, evaded a determined defense.

Yves Chataigneau, a dealer in ammunition, an airplane flew an emergency supply of ammunition to the police force. The posse attacked from a bluff overlooking the house.

Superior forces finally conquered Brown, but he didn't surrender. Officers said he burned his hands rather than accept the warrant.

Wilson, wounded seriously was treated in Gladden Hospital at Hartford, Ark., for wounds in the neck, shoulder, and temple. Templeton was hit in the shoulder.

A third officer, Sgt. Clyde Briggs, was wounded slightly.

The last political visitor to confer with Dewey in New York was Sen. Styles Bridges, R., N. H., who said prospects for the Republican party were unusually good in New England.

He predicted, moreover, that the strength of the Dewey-Warren ticket would enable the GOP to increase its majority in Congress in the November elections.

The people are fed up with the inadequacy of the present leadership, he said. "There is a desire for their part for new and positive leadership. Governor Dewey has given the brand of leadership in New York that they would like to see nationally."

Dewey aides have promised that the GOP nominee wage a vigorous campaign during September and October.

Mr. Truman was scheduled to begin his formal drive for election on Oct. 1.

Other political developments: Dixiecrats—the Dixiecrats won a major battle in their fight to get on the North Carolina ballot when the state superior court ruled that the anti-Dixiecrat board of elections had no right to refuse to recognize the new party's petitions as valid. The court held that the board was unreasonable when it demanded that voters in primary elections could not sign such petitions.

Wherry — Sen. Kenneth S. Wherry, R., Neb., said President Truman's failure to turn over information on Communist investigations "is a shocking admission" on his part of a lack of faith in Congress. He said that the American people will recognize this as a further indication of the administration's "lack of sympathy for representative government."

The New, new party — Gerald L. K. Smith has organized the "Christian Nationalist Party" on the theory that "every intelligent American knows that where there is a Jewish problem, there is a Negro problem and a treason problem."

Smith keynoted the party's first convention in St. Louis last night. The delegates will nominate candidates for president and vice president tonight.

Crazed Farmer, Sister Dead After Gun Fight

Hasly, Aug. 21 — (UP) — A crazed farmer and his invalid sister were dead today as gun smoke cleared over the Buffalo river valley in this lonely Ozark mountain region.

Authorities said Heywood Brown, 60, killed his sister, Dora, and himself yesterday during a lull in a 24-hour gun battle with 50 troopers and local officers, three of them wounded.

Brown's barren, two-room shanty burst into flames as two shots rang from its interior. When the embers cooled officers found the charred bodies of Brown and his sister.

War Department Order Steps Up Guard Training

Little Rock, Aug. 20 — (AP) — The training program of the Arkansas National Guard, now encamped at Camp Robinson, was stepped up 100 per cent today by order of the War Department.

The intensified program was announced by Col. Don W. Scott, senior regular army instructor for Arkansas.

Work of the guardsmen at Camp Robinson was doubled immediately.

Scott said that while original guard training plans called for a six-year course of weekly drills and annual encampments, the War Department had ordered the training period to last three years. He said the order was not explained.

Soviet Agents Combing U. S. Reports Say

Washington, Aug. 21 — (UP) — Reports from all over the country to day underscored army warnings that Russian intelligence agents are combing the United States for essential to strategic military planning.

A United Press survey of Chamber of Commerce and business men disclosed that suspect inquiries have been pouring in from over 100 industrial centers which would be prime targets in event of war.

Many of the communications were "suspicious" enough to warrant turning them over to the FBI for military intelligence. And one chamber official said inquiries of information sought would be "like pointing out important targets to the Russians."

A number of others, however, regarded the inquiries received as entirely innocent.

Army intelligence asked the Commerce department here and businessmen throughout the country to be wary of information requests from overseas, no matter how harmless they seem. It said after learning of a German agent, seemingly innocent origin, but following a set pattern, had been sent to more than 80 chambers of commerce and to several score industrial concerns.

The bulk of these queries ask for maps, information about terrain and transportation, telephone communications data, and industrial facts of many kinds. Such information, the army says, could find its way into "order battle" plans for strategic bombing, sabotage, or invasion.

The inquiries for the most part come from what the army calls "thinly-disguised Soviet intelligence powers" in Russia, and satellite nations and Soviet Germany.

Many, however, come from friendly countries and may or may not be legitimate. Several queries were sent to North and South Dakota, where it was pointed out, lie on potential bomber routes from across the Arctic.

TRUST

By Elswyth Thane

"By the way," said Sabrina, elaborately casual, "have you got a key to that room—the one that's locked?"

"I have," said Mrs. Pilton.

THE STORY: A mysterious locked room on the top floor of Nuns Farthing, a rented country house, fascinates dreamy, twenty-old Sabrina. Father and Aunt Effie tell her the room belongs to one of the owners sons and they are not to use the use of it. Sabrina questions Mrs. Pilton, the housekeeper, who says the room is always locked when "he" is not at home. Curiosity overpowers Sabrina and one rainy day she manages to pick the lock. The knob turns, the door opens, and she steps inside.

Sabrina, Father and Aunt Effie first arrived at Nuns Farthing in March. A damp, chilly wind was blowing off the hills.

It was not a lovely house, at Sabrina's first sight of it, standing gaunt and gray against a barren hillside, the chill early twilight of that March day. Nothing much had been done about the garden, though a few bulbs seemed to be coming up. It was hardly late enough for lights and the many captioned windows watched them blankly as they came round the curve of the drive.

The housekeeper opened the door to them, and remarked that the fires never drew right in the wind, and walked about in a somewhat smoky atmosphere with their coats still on, looking hopefully into the strange rooms which enigmatically awaited their scrutiny; comfortably furnished rooms, clothed in chintz and good velvet, well lighted and of the family. Bella sniffed and scurried in the corners, and Aunt Effie said it really wasn't bad, and Sabrina—Sabrina shook and shivered like a little racehorse at the post as she crossed the threshold.

A spacious hall, with a wide oak staircase rising from its middle. Padded walls, rather gloomy. Two big drawing-rooms, one opening into the garden, and a library which was already Father's exclusive sacred den. A long dim room opening off the back of the hall, with family portraits and a cold white marble mantelpiece. The hall opened off the side. Nine bedrooms. Aunt Effie, popping open doors, muttering busily to herself, efficiently questioning the housekeeper, while Bella pattered at her heels, gave Sabrina her choice of two. The first one had blue and white flowered wallpaper and chintzes, a window seat with a long view down the garden in blue twilight, a four-poster bed with chintz and a pulled-off drew a long sigh and pulled off her hat and tossed it into the armchair beside the dressing-table.

"This is it," she said simply and for some childish reason she could not understand there was a lump in her throat and she wanted to cry.

"Well, just as you like, dear—Jennie will bring up your bag in a few minutes. Jennie is the housemaid," said Aunt Effie, and bustled away.

Sabrina walked over and pulled the chain of the bedside lamp, which cast an amber glow across the little table beneath it—just a novel, not very new, but suitable for reading in bed, as though the room had been expecting her. There were more books in built-in shelves beyond the bed. There was a paper and pen, and ink. Blue glass toilet things. Her room, waiting for her. With a coal fire grate, and everything laid ready for the night. Her own coal fire in her own room. Sabrina put her head in the open door.

"You and I will use the bathroom," said Mrs. Pilton, the housekeeper, Superintendent.

Sermon—11 a.m. B.P.C.—6:45 p.m. Auxiliary, Monday afternoon at the church. Mrs. Wade Warren, president.

Teacher's Meeting, 7 p.m. Wednesday. Prayer meeting at 7:30 with Mrs. Clifford Booth, leader.

Wives' Pet Peeves

A young girl who is about to be married asks what faults in a husband does a wife find it hardest to endure? Well, that's a hard question to answer, for women have different standards of conduct for their husbands, and the fault that one wife would laugh off would burn another wife up.

But, generally speaking, I think that the grievance that gets most on the nerves of the majority of wives is for their husbands to take them for granted. It gives them a shock from which they never recover. During the days of courtship they have been fed up on flattery and to be suddenly deprived of this and put on a plain, but ambitious, diet is more than they can stand. As long as a husband takes an interest in holding his wife's hands, she will work them to the bone for him. But if she

Greenwood Tightens Hold on Loop Lead

By The Associated Press
The Greenwood Dodgers have tightened their hold on the lead of the Cotton States league and now stand seven and a half games above the pack.

They took both ends of a double header from Hot Springs last night 4-2 and 5-1.

Clarkdale, meanwhile, secured its hold on second place by defeating El Dorado 5-1. Hot Springs had been pushing upward toward second place until it suffered its double defeat.

Natchez shut out Helena 6-0.

In the games at Hot Springs, each team had eight hits but Greenwood got them when they counted. The final was more of the same, with Greenwood getting seven hits and Hot Springs six, but Greenwood bunched theirs to make five runs in the fifth frame.

Stan Purma gave the Planters their win at Clarkdale. With two on and Eddie Rulman's single, Al Natchez the Indians got to Land and to his while Gougeau was holding Helena to four. Helena's four errors aided the Indians.

Greenwood had no trouble with Pine Bluff. In the finale Vic Hildebrand hurled a one hitter to hand-icuff the cards. In the opener the Bucks overpowered the Cardinals 16 hits to five.

Tonight's Schedule:
El Dorado at Helena.
Natchez at Clarkdale.
Greenwood at Hot Springs.
Clarkdale at Pine Bluff.

Fair Enough

By Westbrook Pegler
Copyright, 1947
By King Features Syndicate.

New York, Aug. 19 — About the time New York Yankees brought Babe Ruth back from Boston, a young woman reporter hit me from the sticks with $60, a scrap of clippings and letters of approval from the judge, the chief justice and a clergyman, back home. She handed me the News, a squalling baby of a paper when Phil Payne, the city editor, handed her an assignment which had been a turkey for several other reporters and she came in not only with the one story but two.

Her assignment was to learn whether the vestry of the Church of the Ascension on Fifth Avenue would uphold or repudiate the Rev. Percy Stickney Grant who wanted to use the edifice as a political forum. This she did by walking up the stairs of the church where she encountered a faithful making altar vestments and he, gesturing her with shears and adjuring her to get quiet, whispered that he had listened outside the door and had heard them vote in favor of Doctor Grant.

Confronting some vestrymen, she confirmed her information, into knowledge or story No. 1. And the tailor added, there was a revolutionary meeting going on at that moment which she could attend by walking quietly and pretending to belong. And that was the end. The speaker was a wild red head whose main proposition was to blow up the capitol in Washington, in no rhetorical sense but physically. This gave her to inquire of a deaconess whether she speaker was in the text whether to go to the "ex-Governor" Sulzer who had been sent to Albany by Tammany and later impeached by Tammany. For all the pietistic propaganda that has been made for Sulzer as a martyred victim of a brutal, political monster, he was, as far as I know, a decent man. He was a decent man to the extent of his powers which Tammany triumphed back in the nick of time.

The determined woman turned on my biased reporter and angrily said: "That is Governor Sulzer! Not 'ex-governor'!" It was indeed Sulzer no less and the wild man's inflammatory comment in a room on the premises of the Church of the Ascension heightened the importance of the dispute between those who had voted to uphold Doctor Grant and those who predicted Muscovite horrors if he did.

A few weeks later the lady reporter was injured when a street car trampled her taxicab and so it happened that even by the fall of 1921, the year that the Yankees with Babe Ruth hitting 54 homers, won their first pennant and went into their first World Series against the Giants of John McGraw, she still was in a hospital. Paralyzed from a fracture of her spine, she was feeling morose and fairly well forgot.

That was a wonderful World Series. It was the first real prohibition World Series and more liquor was drunk and the keels of more ancestors were laid than at any other before or since. The whole mezzanine of the commodore was a bar. There was another bar at the Maritime Union for the more exclusive joining of the late Capt. W. H. Huston, an engineer and a partner in the Yankees who, in France, 1917, had gone around saying, "I am building waterworks but, as God is my judge, I am doing it only under orders from General Pershing with the permission of the immortal disfigure the only alternative."

There was another great private bar at the old Waldorf for the triumphant victor of John McGraw and his truculent partner, Magistrate P. X. McQuade whose stout showed the honorable wear-and-tear of the Giants' bar-room, where meetings were opened with blackbills and brass gobboons and closed by the safe and left sound. Waiting the details of Babe Ruth's performance you may take it on faith that he was an enormous morose in the United States of A. and that World Series. One can smell the Yankee home patch in the Polo grounds, having an acres of their own at the time. The press camp, the best in all the business, was an eclipse on the ground floor, normally crowded with reporters, commissioners, detectives and bucket-shop men in normal times, but now jammed with journalists of the purest authenticity, except only novelists seeking social significance and "prospects" of the type of Cobb and Evers and their ink-stained literary hands.

The emotional streak of leaves and fall was rife, mingled with the another bar laid on saw-horses in the restaurant beneath the stands. Ruth was a hairy old bull, as one remembers now and sadly, just a solid, lumpy, reelin'-school kid, with a nose as wide as a handspan and cheeks so fat he seemed to have punched a trumpet on each side. He could suck just a pound of tobacco and spit through his ears.

He was great. Young and famous and great. He was bubbling with confidence and when that World Series was over he was the greatest man in the world to most of the people of the United States.

His autograph was precious on an old laundry bill or the back of an envelope. On his photograph, his signature was a prize to fight over. And a genuine Babe Ruth autograph on the virgin hide of a new baseball "Babe Ruth" written in that good, round fist with the quotation marks which were later to become the hall-mark, was a gift fit to stand as a pledge of love unspeakable, eternal. That was my best friend.

To the young invalid reporter at the hospital a few days after the World Series there came a square box in a gift-wrapper which she had her nurse please open; her nurse hand it to her and she found there had been some very non-committal and timid overtures toward her before she was paralyzed and, preceding the arrival of the gift box, a little preparatory letter, in good arch and dumb, bidding her await a treasure of unutterable significance.

They thought the box would overtake her for the trunk which for one reason, they had in mind, was a game!

In the 26 years since our marriage in the summer of 1922, she has often told this with intent to embarrass.

But I have never been put out of it. It was a beautiful gift, an autograph "Babe Ruth" ball of the Series of 1922, the greatest year of all.

District 7 Athletic Meet Here Aug. 24

District No. 7 High School Athletic Association will hold meetings at Camden on August 23 and at Hope on August 24 for school officials and game officials.

The program will consist of a general meeting at 6:30 for game officials and school officials.

At seven the school officials will go into a meeting for the purpose of clearing up questions of students eligibility, forms for AAA, Athletic Insurance, and football schedules.

The game officials will have a two hour meeting on football officiating. Mr. Burnett will give a test for new officials.

The game officials meeting will be under the direction of Mr. Roy White and Mr. Jack McKenna, officials of the Arkansas Officials Association.

The Cardinals National Football League champions, taught their line play, pass defense, and passing too, even to Johnny Lunkack, Charlie Cramer and Bob Chapuis, in taking a 27 to 0 victory from the "greenies" collection of college stars in the 15-year history of the annual pro college game.

It was a well-deserved victory for the pro faithfuls, and it gave them and their league a good measure of revenge for lunkacks suffered from the collegians for the past two years.

Last night, before 101,220 fans in Soldiers' Field, the Cardinals went to town. They outsped their younger competitors man for man, all the way from the heaviest harem to the lightest backs.

They hit first and hardest, and their timing and conditioning was excellent. Contrary to custom, last night the pro's didn't wilt. The pro tightendlers went at top speed for the entire 60 minutes and no matter how deep Coach Jimmy Conzelmann dug into his reserves, his line and backfield were always a shade better than what the collegians had at hand.

The Cardinals set the tempo of the game in the first half, grinding without a halt on two marches of 30 and 43 yards, both ending in touchdowns. Fullback Pat Harter, Halfbacks Elmer Anagnan and Charlie Trippi and Quarterback Paul Christman all participated.

Editor Hope Star: Station KXAR has graciously offered to the Friday Music Club a weekly period for the presentation of a program featuring local musicians. We are deeply appreciative of this opportunity, for regardless of the high tide of entertainment offered by the Mutual Network we feel there is nothing which can take the place of actual participation in the making of music. We do not think we have any local Nelson Eddys or Jeanette MacDonalds but we are proud of the talent we do have and we think it should be encouraged in every way possible. We therefore bespeak the interest and support of all music lovers of Hope and vicinity. It is hoped that they will further encourage the participation to them or to some member of the club. In this way we hope to render a real service to the community and, in the words of our Federation Collect, to bring the spiritualizing force of music to the inner life of our nation. Sincerely yours,

MRS. B. C. HYATT
President, Friday Music Club
